Biography

Erin Clancy is a senior partner in Kightlinger & Gray's Indianapolis office. Prior to her work as a litigator at Kightlinger & Gray, Erin's practice focused on real estate transactions. She brings that experience to her professional liability practice, including work with realtors, mortgage brokers, appraisers, inspectors, property owners associations, and closing agents as well as litigation involving land use and/or management, and title and boundary disputes. Erin majored in biology when receiving her undergraduate degree and regularly uses that knowledge when handling product liability-related matters, especially those cases pertaining to medical devices, as well as toxic and/or mass torts. Additionally, Erin has extensive experience in transportation litigation, representing motor carriers, brokers, and logistics providers in tort, contract, and cargo claims. A significant amount of Erin's practice also focuses on liquor liability, representing restaurants, bars, and hospitality vendors across the state. Early in her career, Erin was recognized by her peers with the Indianapolis Bar Association Young Lawyers Award. Erin has also received the Indianapolis Bar Association Board of Directors Award, become a Distinguished Fellow and a Life Fellow of the Indianapolis Bar Foundation, and has been selected for inclusion on the Rising Stars or Super Lawyers lists, published in Indiana Super Lawyers Magazine, every year since 2009.
